

2007 F=ma Exam: Problem 14

Kevin S. Huang

Friction points in the direction to oppose relative motion between two surfaces.

Since the rear wheel is being powered and turned clockwise such that its bottom point is moving backward, friction on the rear wheel points in the forward direction.

Since the front wheel is being pushed forward, friction on the front wheel points in the backward direction. Thus, the answer is A.